

Please, please do not weaken or change Indiana's "Do-Not-Call" phone privacy law. It works, is effective, and our family does not want that to change. Having two children under 5 years old, the few hours that I spend with my children after work in the evening is sacred. Before Indiana's law was enacted, dinner time, bath tub time, and book reading time were constantly being interrupted by unwanted telemarketing calls. And finally, after getting the children to sleep, just relaxing and reading the paper was not possible because the telephone would often ring until 10:00 p.m.. Since the law was enacted, our household has taken a dramatic turn for the better. We thank our Indiana elected officials for their efforts and we hope that the federal government will implement nationwide what our state government has implemented in Indiana.
